Embargoed Data Usage Contract: 2018 Populism and Political Parties Expert Survey (POPPA)

Until January 2020, the data is available under embargo only. This means that researchers are free to request the data (via our contact form on www.poppa-data.eu). Yet, in principle, the data cannot be used for publication until January 2020. We provide the following data files:

Currently, the data is available under restricted access only. This means that researchers are free to request the data, but the data can be used for publication only in consultation with the researchers. We provide the following data files:

- party_means: This file contains the mean expert judgments per political party.
- party_median: This file contains the median expert judgments per political party.
- expert-level: This file contains the expert judgments per political party on expert level

All files are available in Stata format (.dta) and as a comma-separated values file (.csv).

Currently, the data is available under restricted access only. This means that researchers are free to request the data, but the data can be used for publication only in consultation with the researchers. If you agree with the information above. Please sign the declaration below.

“I hereby declare that I will not use the data files acquired for any published research output or any other publication without explicit consent from the Principal Investigators, dr. Maurits J. Meijers and dr. Andrej Zaslove. This includes online publication or conference contributions.”
